Although a few persistent men stayed in line over Sunday at the Lincoln Trust, the Trust Company of America and the latter's Colonial branch so as to be on hand for the opening of the doors, a sumber of them got their tardy second judgment curing this forencon and departed, leaving their deposits still in the yaulis.

The rows of umbrella-covered men and women shortened rapidly. At the Colonial branch in particular the line had almost disappeared as early as soon.

John H. Alchele, at No. 1606 Avenue A. They were wrathy over what they termed an outrageous assault they had just seen a policeman commit on a drimken man. One of them called up Police Headquarters and circumsantially detailed to the person he was addressing that the policeman had struck Kasanpf with his club and knocked him lifeless.

Two ther men followed the first three into the drug store. They told the same story and asserted that twenty-five people saw the assault. One of these men also telephoned to head quarters.

There was no action taken, however, from headquarters. Commissioner Blingham's appeal to citizens to call up Mulberry street and report things appears to have been shown ineffective in this instance.

Neither did the Coroners' Office take any immediate action. Some one, apparently with authority, gave permission for the removal of the body rom the station-house to the undertaking rooms of C. Herriich & Son, at No. 226 East Eighty-sixth street. Before the undertaker got around for the body a full statement of the facts reaches the Board of Coroners, and the order for the removal of the body was laster taken to the Morgue, where an action was all the morthwest corner of a fathouse at the northwest corner of affathouse at the northwest corner of English for the policeman assault kneenfor. Backs Policeman's Story. To support Kelleher's statement is the fact that at the time of the alleged assault he had a raincoat tightly buttoned around his uniform, and he has witnesses who will say that his club was strapped to his belt under the coat. There are no marks of violence discernible on the body. Kaempf was in bad physical health.

His brothers, R. A. Kaempf and George. Kaempf, have a musical instrument store at No. 331 East Eighty-sixth treet. They are convinced that Florence died of an apopiectic stroke.

'He was not well," said R. A. Kaempf, "and he had been drinking hard of late. He suffered from headaches and took great quantities headaache powders. His pockets w filled with them when his clothing was searched.
